Subject: Comm. v. ██████████

ADA Busby,
As you are probably aware, we chemists often find ourselves double summonsed to different jurisdictions for the same day. Several contingencies determine the reality of our appearance in court at a given opening to trials, whether there is a last minute plea, can a jury be impaneled the first day of note, etc. It would be chaos if we were to consider all the contingencies to every double booked appearance and try to juggle the best scenario for all parties on a given day. We must presume that 75 to 90% of our summons to an appearance on a particular day will not happen and each jurisdiction must understand that we chemists are "on call" and will go where we must for any given day.

We chemists are forced sometimes to triage our appearances with three criteria:
1) commit more completely to the office which summonsed us first
2) offer our appearance first to the office which has a higher stakes case
3) juggle our appearances in the order determined by competing prosecutors working with each other to the convenience of their respective courts

I was previously summonsed to Wareham on the 26th and have another summons to Suffolk County the 27th. These cases are all about the same magnitude offense. I will not pick a case by degree but will simply go with the statistic that 2 out of 3 of you will not need me and go on call to the case with the most immediate need. I believe Annie is in the same position.

RE Comm. v. [REDACTED]

Best wishes,

Hi Annie:

Thanks for your help. I really appreciate it.

My understanding is that the original form is a single sheet of paper and that page 2 of the PDF is the backside of page 1. Is that right?

To the left of "Cobalt Thiocyanate", you wrote "3"; to the right, inside the brackets, you wrote "+". I assume that the "3" means that you tested all three bags and that the "+" means that each bag tested positive (to the degree provided for by this spot test) for cocaine. Is that right? And is there a reason for the brackets?

To the right of "TLTA" you wrote "+ +". Is there a reason for the second plus sign? And again, is there a reason for the brackets?

Finally, can you tell me what decision rule your lab uses for identifying cocaine via GCMS? It's been a while since I took analytical chemistry in college and so I don't remember the term

Re Com v [REDACTED]

that I'm looking for....
How similar must the standard and the sample be for the result to be positive?

I testified for Dave Solet and Jim Mulcahy a couple of times. They may be able to help as well.

I am also a confirmatory chemist. I can state that confirmatory testing is reviewable data and anyone trained in GC/MS can review and interpret the data.

I have attached a set of predicate questions with my answers that we created enlight of Melendez-Diaz.
It may help or not. I will review your questions over the weekend and get back to you.

Definitely, keep the expert testimony section, it will build credibility. I would stay away from questions regarding accreditation, and publications.

Subject: Cw. v. [REDACTED]

Hi Craig,

Sorry to bother you. Hope you had a nice Thanksgiving.

But need a favor, if possible.

Just out of curiosity, do you still have a copy of the pdf file for the above case from Feb 2011? The case is now a civil trial.
If you still have a copy, could you please email me? If not, no worries I can re-create the packet.

Thanks as always for help.

Sorry for the late response. No worries, I am more than happy to assist.

When I get back to the Lab in the AM, I will check the status of Lab #/s and get back to you. If the samples have not been assigned, I will have the evidence office put them as ASAP case needed before 3/10. If no one has taken it by early next week, I will personally test it.

Thanks for sending an expedited request.

Annie,

I am prosecuting a gun and drug case in Fall River District Court that is scheduled for trial on March 17.

The defendant is held in custody on a dangerousness hearing and the case is three months old.

I sent a priority cert request by fax (to the 617-983-6210 number) for the drugs but I wanted to email you as well. Could you possibly help facilitate the testing? I know you probably get a lot of these requests. If I can't get the case tried by the 17th, technically, the court could release the defendant on bail. That's why I'm asking, so I can summons the appropriate chemist!

The Lab Numbers are [REDACTED]

Thanks!

Subject: Questions

Sorry for the late response. Hope this helps.

I take it that the attached version of Part III B was in effect when the drugs in this case were tested? Is that right? Yes

Table 1 lists "Color Tests" under Category C. Would this include the cobalt thiocyanate spot test? All spot tests? Yes would the GC-MS testing in this case count as one or two techniques/methods? Section 3.4 says that GC and MS "will be considered as separate techniques provided that the results from each are used." Seems to me that the answer hinges on the meaning of the word "used." If I understand the testing that was done in this case, GC was used to separate the component parts of each sample and MS was used to identify each part. Given that scenario, while the GC was "used" to separate the component parts, only the MS was "used" to actually identify the cocaine. Is that right? Yes, we consider it two separate tests.

Would the Gold Chloride test and the TLTA test count as one technique/method, given that they both fall under "Microcrystalline Tests"? At the Lab, we consider it two tests, under the same category. We must perform both tests for presence of cocaine.

Also, section 3.2 states that a lab need not use any Category A technique/method (which includes Mass Spectrometry) so long as three different validated methods are employed. At the same time, my understanding is that your lab requires GC-MS in all cases (or, at least, in all cases involving suspected powder cocaine). Did I miss something? Does your lab have an additional policy? We require reviewable data. Therefore, for Class A -D, except for marijuana, we do GC/MS on the sample. Please understand, the SWGDRUG recommends these as minimum standards for drug analysis and it is up to the Lab to have higher expectations for analysis by its chemists.

My understanding is that there are eight forms of cocaine: pseudo (D and L), allo (D and L), pseudo-allo (D and L), and cocaine (D and L). Did I get that right? Yes

It is also my understanding that only L-allo and L-cocaine qualify under Mass law. Is that right? No, only L-cocaine is controlled in Mass.

And can you forward the statute/regulation that limits the definition of cocaine under Mass law to L and non-synthetic forms? I believe it is MGL Chapter 94C section 31 Class B #4

Does the Cobalt Thiocyanate spot test discriminate between the eight forms of cocaine? How about the Gold Chloride or the TLTA microcrystalline tests? Cobalt Thiocyanate is a non specific test. It gives a presumptive direction to proceed in the analysis. It does not discriminate the forms of cocaine. If the cobalt changes from pink to blue, this indicates that cocaine maybe present. Then we perform the microcrystalline test. The AuCl will eliminate the presence of 6 of the enantiomers of cocaine. Then the TLTA will distinguish the presences of L cocaine.

RE Predicate questions with answers

Sent: Friday, April 22, 2011 1:13 PM
To: Khan, Annie (DPH)
Subject: RE: Predicate questions with answers

Good changes.

I added a 12a and 12b:

12) Approximately how many times have you had occasion to test for a controlled substance? 10s of thousands
12a) Have you testified in court before regarding analyses you have conducted?
Yes.
12b) How many times and in what courts?

I don't know your answer to 12b, but I'm assuming it's good.

As for using the second chemist, as a layperson it seems like everything is covered in your testimony (or at least enough for the certifications to come in and to prove that the substances are coke, heroin and OC). I'll play it by ear. If the defense atty for some reason knows what he's doing (but I don't think he does) and makes things difficult I'll call Dan and ask Dan what he did.

Thanks again for all your help. Scientific things are not my strong suit. I took "Dynamic Earth" in college to fulfill my science requirements rather than chemistry, physics or biology.

wording of question #
35 and eliminated what was question # 37. I edited these to avoid potential problems from the d/c.

Dan was the confirmatory chemist. His role was to compare the unknown sample to a known standard.

We perform confirmatory test because we require reviewable data. I can state that because I am trained in GC/MS (confirmatory test), I can review the documents form my opinion to those findings. It has worked in my previous cases.

We leave that decision up to the ADA, if d/c and the judge has no objections, I can testify to everything.

You call the shots. I would suggest to have me testify to everything and see how it goes. But I will still bring Dan just incase. Worst case, he is not needed and I buy him donuts. Haha.

Have a nice weekend as well.

Annie,

Well! Thank you, thank you, thank you! I wish every witness would do the same and send me back their answers in red.

After reading through that, do I really need Dan? Can you explain to me his role?

Have a great weekend and see you next week. I'll contact you after I get started on Tuesday to confirm the Thursday at 9 time.

Best, Craig

Avoid questions that deal with: accreditation, publications and external training.

Additional questions that may help build creditability(at least in my experience):

Have you ever testified before?

If so, approximately how many times and which courts?

Hope this helps. Let me know if I need to clarify or expand on any particular topics.

Annie,
Unfortunately I won't be able to stop by on Monday I have evidence up to me ears and Brian is enjoying his day off taking a walk on Wollaston Beach. I will be there on Tuesday and maybe I could search the floor and find some crumbs. I hope you guys have a good day.

Thanks again for the invite.

Billy

P.S. I hope you enjoyed the emails, both Brian and I very much enjoy fighting with each other. At the end of the day he is truly the best friend a guy could have.

Annie,

Thanks for the kind words. Billy and I are still friends. Actually, I'm thinking of reconsidering my retirement from the evidence position, especially if there is cheesecake and desserts involved. Unfortunately I can't make it tomorrow but thanks for the invite. Hope to see you before the holidays. Talk with you soon. Billy, prepare everything and I'll bring the evidence this week. :-)

Regards,

Brian

Brian has on the job. There is no "I" in team but there sure is in Brian. Lately he has been a complaining little bitch. I am looking for a replacement. I don't expect much

Brian did so little even if the new person is a complete lazy idiot he or she will be an

This jack @ss has until March 28th 2011 to change his plea. otherwise, he can go meet Isa Fernandes in prison following our last guilty verdict (Annie and Della). Det. Billy Ward (my favorite detective) was out of work injured because of this incident for over a month...so I have a personal vendetta against him!

Annie,

That should be fine. I will touch base with you at lunch or the end of the court day. If you can come tomorrow, that will be great and Della should be good to go for Friday. BTW, what time is her appt? I may be able to work around it tomorrow.

Thanks, Ted

You're welcome. No worries, I am glad that we could get everything completed in a timely manner.

As for testifying, unfortunately Della is unavailable on Thursday due to doctor's appts. Could we both testify on Friday @ 9 AM or worst case I can get there on Thursday?

I had the pleasure of speaking with Agent White today. I felt bad that he was and will be on the stand today and tomorrow. As we discuss, the samples will be back in the safe in AM, so you can pick it up at your convenience. I hope I have the pleasure of meeting you.

Thanks.

Annie,

Thank you so much for your help and professionalism in getting this done. I will probably need you and Della to testify on Thursday. Will that work? Do you need subpoenas from my office?

I am copying the case agent on this email so he can arrange to pick up the drug exhibits.

Thanks again,
Ted

Thanks for coming down despite your crazy schedules.
